SOUL FRIENDS.

They had been mutually attracted at once. At least, so Sada fondly believed. It was not hard for Sada to believe a thing when she wanted it to be so.

"He isn't at all my ideal man physically," she explained to her cousin Tom. She was telling him, because he was the only person she knew to whom she could talk with absolute freedom.

The fact that Tom loved her did not interfere with their friendship. She made a business of forgetting all about Tom's love. She had a happy family for forgetting everything she wanted to forget.

"He is little, round shouldered and not the least bit in the world handsome, but, oh, how my soul goes out to him!" she sighed.

"Tom, dear," she went on after a little, touching her cousin's cheek caressingly, "do you believe in reincarnation?"

"I've never thought about it," Tom answered. That touch of Sada's hand had made his heart beat wildly in spite of her frequent assurance that her caresses were only given him in a sisterly way.

"Hendrick and I must have been twins in another life. How else could we have known each other so well from the first?" Sada mused.

"And when are you going to marry him?" asked Tom in a husky voice, which he tried to make sound matter of fact.

Sada looked at him pathetically. "How can you, Tom? I should think you would know I did not mean anything of that sort. I'm disappointed in you, Tom. Such a thing as marriage has never been mentioned between Hendrick and me and never will be!"

Tom was silent a moment, then inquired in a hesitating way, as if he were not quite sure how she would take his question:

"Did you ever pat his cheek as you did mine a moment ago?"

A rush of color came into Sada's face. "Of course not," she answered emphatically. "I'm not given to doing such things. Only there is something about your silly old face that tempts me when I am with you, but with Hendrick it is different. It is his soul that I care for."

Tom's first expression of relief was followed by one of mournfulness. What if Sada did speak in this way now? Of course she would be betrothed soon to the man whose soul had attracted hers.

A season passed, during which daily letters were exchanged between the soul friends. As the hour approached for them to meet again Sada could hardly wait for it.

"Tom, dear, I am so happy! I have been counting even the minutes," Sada said, when her faithful cousin put her in the car that was to take her to Summer Vale Springs, the trysting place.

"Aunt Lucy was slightly indisposed yesterday, and I almost killed her with attention for fear she would not be able to travel today," she added. "Now, kiss me, Tom, and hurry away, or you may be carried off when the train starts."

When Tom stood on the platform beside her window, she cried out.

"Smile! How dare you look solemn, you selfish boy, when I'm so happy?"

The journey was very trying. She couldn't read, and there was no Tom to talk to. Aunt Lucy was no company. She was too poor a traveler.

When Summer Vale Springs was reached, the soul brother was at the depot to help Sada off. She gazed jealously into his face, but did not tell him how she had counted the hours.

Then began those delightful talks and walks. So much new music had to be learned, so many new books discussed. One day Sada made an unusually becoming toilet and asked Hendrick cautiously how she looked. He studied her attentively, and she found herself waiting breathlessly for his answer.

That night she wrote to poor, long suffering Tom: "Our friendship—Hendrick's and mine—is more ideal than ever. It is so soul-satisfying." And Tom sighed as he said to himself, "She will tell me of her engagement in her next letter."

At the end of the first week Sada said to Hendrick:

"I am making the most of my time—getting all of your life that I can. Soon you will tell your love to one of the many girls who cross your path, and she may object to our friendship." As she listened for his answer her heart almost ceased to beat.

"No," Hendrick said slowly, "I don't think I shall. It is probable that I shall never marry."

That night Sada cried herself to sleep. The next morning she tried to find out why she had cried.

"It is because I am a woman, and women are senseless about some things," she told herself furiously.

A few days later Alice Bandret arrived at the Springs. Hendrick remarked that she was one of the most beautiful girls he had ever seen. A dreadful pain shot through Sada's heart, and she fell into the clutches of the demon jealousy for the first time in her life. She had never liked Alice, voting her "a stupid," but now she cultivated her society assiduously, to the great delight of the fair girl, who had always longed for attention.

EDIE MEDICAL CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

Saved His Life

—by a fortunate discovery in the nick of time. Hundreds of persons, suffering from consumption, have had the progress of the disease stopped, and have been brought back to life and health by the "Golden Medical Discovery" of Dr. Pierce.

Years ago Dr. R. V. Pierce, now chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., recognizing the fact that consumption was essentially a germ disease, and that a remedy which would drive the germs and their poisons from the blood would cure consumption, at last found a medicine which cured 98 per cent of all cases, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease.

The tissues of the lungs being irritated by the germs and poisons in the blood circulating through them, the germs find lodgment there, and the lungs begin to break down. Soon the general health begins to fail, and the person feels languid, weak, faint, drowsy and confused.

This is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery; it drives the germs and poisons from the blood, and has a soothing effect upon the dry cough. In cases of bronchitis the "Discovery" is invaluable.

"Golden Medical Discovery" increases the amount and quality of the blood, thus invigorating and fortifying the system against disease, and builds up wholesome flesh and strength after wasting diseases, as fevers, pneumonia, grip and other debilitating affections.

J. M. HITE, of Andover, Mass., says: "I took a severe cold which settled on my lungs and chest, and I suffered intensely with it. I tried several of our best physicians here and they gave up all hopes of my recovery, and thought I would have to die. I would cough and spit blood for hours, and I was pale and weak. I was greatly discouraged when I began the use of the Discovery, but I soon found better. It has been five years since I took it and have had no return of that trouble since."

CARLISLE'S CHANGE ON THE SILVER ISSUE.

In 1878 John G. Carlisle, a member of the House of Representatives from Kentucky, voted for the Bland free coinage bill. In support of that measure he said:

My position on this subject is briefly this. I am opposed to free coinage of either gold or silver, but in favor of unlimited coinage of both metals upon terms of exact equality. No discrimination should be made in favor of one metal and against the other, nor should any discrimination be made in favor of the holder of either gold or silver bullion and against the great body of the people who own other kinds of property.

It should be borne in mind that a charge of about $3 per thousand dollars was made in the mint for the coinage of silver, and a proportionate charge for coining gold. Mr. Carlisle was in favor of the unlimited coinage of gold and silver but opposed to the free coinage of either metal; that is, he wanted the owner of the metal to pay cost of mintage. The Bland bill passed the House, but the Senate amended it. Speaking of the attitude of the Senate Mr. Carlisle said:

The Senate has declared by a large vote that the coinage should be limited to a sum not less than $2,000,000, nor more than $4,000,000 per month. If the execution of this measure were entrusted to a public officer whose opinions upon the subject were in accord with those of the great majority of the American people and whose sympathies were with the struggling masses who produce the wealth and pay the taxes of the country, rather than the idle holders of idle capital, the provision allocated to would be of little consequence, because he would coin the maximum instead of the minimum allowed by the amendment.

The House refused to concur in the Senate amendments and a conference committee consisting of three members of the House, of which Bland was chairman, and of three members of the Senate, of which Allison was chairman, compromised on the Standard Dollar, or Bland-Allison Act of 1878, which remained in force until July, 1893, when it was repealed by the Sherman Act.

Mr. Carlisle was in favor of the unlimited coinage of gold and silver upon terms of exact equality. He then believed that the execution of the Standard Dollar Act was entrusted to a public official whose opinions were in accord with those of the great majority of the American people, and whose sympathies were with the struggling masses, the maximum of $4,000,000 of silver dollars per month would be coined.

Two years ago last March Mr. Carlisle became an official entrusted with the management of the financial affairs of the Government. He proved that he was "not in accord with the great majority of the American people," nor in sympathy with the struggling masses, as he suspended the coinage of silver at the mints and declined to redeem any Government obligation with silver dollars. Now, Mr. Carlisle, against the wishes of the majority of the American people, and against the sympathies of the struggling masses, and in the interest of the gold syndicate declares gold to be the only standard of value and silver to be unfit for money except for subsidiary coins, the same as copper or nickel. He does not, like Major McKinley, who was a silver man when in Congress, say he was wrong then and right now, but without any explanation whatever advocates the single gold standard, and though at one time in favor of unlimited coinage of gold and silver on terms of exact equality, escapes the accusation of misrepresenting his former attitude by a technicality, as he advocated mint charges for the coinage of gold and silver and therefore was not in favor of free coinage.

GENERAL SCHOFIELD FOR PRESIDENT

Major General John McAllister Schofield of the United States Army is very favorably mentioned as a Presidential candidate in 1896. He was born in western New York in 1833, graduated at West Point and was a citizen of Illinois when the war broke out. He served with distinction in the Union Army, was Secretary of War in 1868, and is now the ranking General of the regular army with headquarters at Washington. He is a strong advocate of free coinage and the Illinois and Missouri papers which are for silver are booming him for President. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch says that on a free silver platform he would carry Missouri and Illinois and could be elected.

General Schofield is now in the South and attended the reunion of Confederates and Federals at Houston, Texas. The politicians say his visit was in the interest of his candidacy, which may or may not be the fact, but admitting it to be so it is nothing more than other candidates have done.

A NEW RAILROAD

Reports from Boise City, Idaho, are to the effect that representatives of eastern capitalists are in that city arranging to secure a bonus for a proposed railroad from Butte, Montana, by way of Boise City to Reno and San Francisco. The men who are backing the enterprise are said to have means and ability to carry it through. A corps of engineers has found the proposed line favorable in all respects. At no point does the elevation exceed 4,650 feet and from Boise City to Reno the grade is only 1,400 feet in eighty miles.

LYNCHING IN ILLINOIS

Two Men Hanged for Assaulting a Young Lady

DANVILLE, Ill., May 25.—John Halls, 31, and William Royce, young men of unsavory reputation, who assaulted Miss Laura Bennett and Lillian Draper, were hanged to the Gilbert street bridge, the scene of the crime, at 3:30 A.M. today. On the way to the bridge from the jail a procession was formed taking the boys through the main street. Halls and Royce both walked with a firm step with ropes around their necks. Royce wanted to see his father, and a delay followed. His father did not come. Halls said he was not ashamed of what he had done. They would not jump and were both thrown over the bridge railing at 3:45. They dropped 30 feet and death followed, both expiring in fearful convulsions. Their faces were not covered. They hung side by side on the east railing. From midnight, when the crowd first made its appearance at the jail doors until the victims were reached, it was a desperate struggle of a frenzied mob battling against the heavy oaken doors and iron bars, occasionally halted by the grim stand of a little band of defenders, under command of Sheriff Thompson. A telegraph pole was used as a battering ram. At 2 o'clock Sheriff Thompson sent for Judge Bookwalter, of the Circuit Court, who addressed the crowd from the jail corridor. He counseled peace and order, and for a few minutes his words were heeded.

Then another desperate attempt was made to reach the cells where the men were sequestered.

Finally Royce was located, crouching and shivering with fear. His cell door was quickly battered down and a score of hands dragged him unceremoniously from his hiding place, underneath a wooden bench, which serves the prisoners as a bed. He was hustled into the dining room and seated on a table, a rope was placed over his head, and while part of the mob kept a close guard over him, others continued to search for Halls, until he was discovered in another remote portion of the jail.

Perhaps the most sensational incident of the lynching occurred during Judge Bookwalter's address to the mob. At first his words produced a telling effect, but the leaders, the most prominent men in the county replied: "Yes, we know that a jury will convict them and give them a severe sentence; but Governor Altgeld will pardon them. He recently pardoned three brutes you sent up from Champaign county for twenty years. If any other man than Altgeld was Governor we would not lynch these men, but we're determined he will never have the chance to turn them loose."

THE ESTHETIC OSCAR.

He is Convicted and Sentenced to Two Years Hard Labor.

LONDON, May 25.—The jury in the Wilde case rendered a verdict of guilty. Sir Frank Lockwood, Solicitor General, concluded his address to the jury by commenting severely on Wilde's intimacy with Lord Alfred Douglas and the exhibition of the younger man by the elder one at hotels and public places in and about London. The jury had been told that they were too low to appreciate Wilde's poetry, and he thanked God it was so, for if showed they were above the level of beasts. Lockwood asked for a verdict which would prevent such detestable and abominable vice to rear its head unblushingly in this country.

The jury returned at 5:30, having been absent from court four hours, and returned a verdict of guilty. A sentence of two years' imprisonment at hard labor was imposed. The same sentence was passed on Alfred Laylor.

While the jury was out, at the request of a representative of the Associated Press, Wilde's counsel procured the following signed statement from Wilde: "The charges alleged against me are entirely untrue. Youth in every form always fascinated me, because youth has naturally that temperament to which artists try to attain. All works of art are work produced in a moment of youth. I have no sense at all of social grades. I love society and the rich and well-born on account of their luxury, culture, the grace of their lives and external accidents of comely life, but any one, a plough boy, fisherman or street arab has an interest for me. Mere humanity is so wonderful that I do not ask of the young what they do. I don't care who they are. Their ignorance has its mode of wisdom. Their lack of culture leaves them open to fresh and varied impressions."

"Oscar Wilde."

HUNTING FOR HENEY

The Detectives on His Trail.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—The Examiner says secret service agents throughout the United States are on the lookout for James E. Heney, charged to be in the band that looted the Carson mint by carrying away $80,000 of gold from the melting and refining department.

The accusation of the officers is that Heney got about $50,000 of the total amount stolen. He was assistant to melter and refiner Jones, who was arrested several months ago for complicity in the crimes that resulted in the investigation of the mint by Asseyer Mason of New York, who was sent to Carson by the Chief Director of the Mint at Washington.

After leaving Nevada Heney went to Butte City, Mont., and then he visited many mining towns, among them the important camps in Colorado. He was recently heard of at a small Colorado camp called Kokomo, where he was visiting a friend named McClasky. The Government agents surrounded the cabin where Heney was supposed to be hiding. He had learned of their approach and had departed. He was last heard of at Pueblo.

Heney is six feet tall and his figure is considerably stooped. He has an awkward gait, and his stupid appearance is a contradiction of his abilities. Heney's wife at Reno is probably the only person who knows his present abode. Photographs of him have been sent to Secret Service agents throughout the country and instructions have been issued for all Government officers to make a special effort to capture him.

Formosa Declares for Independence

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The State Department has received a cablegram from Mr. Denby, United States Minister to China, stating that the Island of Formosa has declared her independence. The Powers have been so notified and the Government, republican in form, has been established. Before this Government can recognize Formosan independence it must be shown that a Provisional Government so formed can be maintained.

An Overdose of Chloral.

TRON, N. Y., May 25.—Dr. R. D. Traver, a prominent physician of this city, took a large dose of chloral this morning instead of bromide of potassium. When he discovered his error he rushed into the office of a neighboring physician and asked for assistance. Although antidotes were promptly administered, Dr. Traver died in a short time.

WILDE GOES TO PRISON

Oscar Wilde was found guilty in Old Bailey Court London, yesterday of a crime so infamous that it has not been named in the catalogue of offenses against law and humanity. He was promptly sentenced to two years' imprisonment at hard labor. Counsel for the prosecution asked the jury to render a verdict that would prevent such detestable and abominable vice as the defendant was accused of to rear its head unblushingly in the community.

Wilde is the man who came to the United States some years ago to teach uncultured Americans the science of the beautiful. He was the hero of the hour, the idol of persons who had an ambition to be esthetic, and he left the country with a much heavier purse than when he arrived. The evidence against him was too vile for publication and the crime of which he is convicted too foul to be named.

DELINQUENTS

The graduates from the several schools, as well as the members of other classes, should avail themselves of the opportunity that Skinner the photographer is now offering. Now is the time to sit for a picture, so that they can be finished by commencement day.

The Salvation Army corps of Reno will hold an auction sale of children at the Congregational Church Friday evening, May 25, at 8 o'clock. A small admission of 10 cents will be charged. The meeting will be something new in Salvation Army work. Everybody invited.

A fire broke out in a creamery near Madison, Wisconsin. The water supply was soon exhausted and 2,300 gallons of milk stood in the building was used to extinguish the flames. It proved as effective a water and the insurance company has received a claim for $84 damages to the building and the value of 2,300 gallons of milk used in saving the creamery from destruction.

The letter service of Wells, Fargo & Co. was abolished yesterday. At one time on the Pacific Coast 12,000 letters a day were handled by this service. Then Wells, Fargo & Co. had offices in many mining camps where there were no postoffices and when a person desired a letter to go without fail it was sent by express. The improved Government mail service caused a falling off in express letter carrying business, which is now abolished.

The returns given by some of the wealthy men of the country to the Income Tax collectors are interesting. The following, made out by a rich New Yorker for the purpose of Federal taxation, is typical: "Income from real estate, $78,000; from Government bonds, $22,500; Chicago city bonds, $18,000; from other sources, $5,000; total income, $113,500; taxable income under the Supreme Court decision, $1,600. On this the tax would be $32."

SHOW YOUR HANDS, GENTLEMEN!

How Many Editors of Republican and Democratic Papers Will Bolt Their Party if It Nominates a Gold-Bug?
(Placer County Representative)

How many editors of Republican or Democratic papers in the State are there that would bolt their party and use the influence of their papers to help to elect a president who was not the nominee of one of those parties in case a candidate was nominated by their party opposed to the restoration of silver? You could count them on the fingers of one hand. Some of the most rampant silver Republican papers of this country are advocating the candidacy of Tom Reed or McKinley, both of whom have been and are now as much the trucking tools of gold-bug monometallists as John Sherman or Grover Cleveland. It is all rot. They know it is all rot, and therefore they deny their honesty. Those two parties destroyed silver and those same leaders are responsible for it. If an incendiary burns our houses once, we shall oppose his being chief of the fire department. The man that puts confidence in the profession of a candidate who talks of some ratio and uses the word party is a sucker of the softest kind. The same old dodges will be used again in '96. Both old parties will adopt platforms favoring silver and nominate candidates opposed to it.

Then they will tell us a third party has no show and you must vote the Republican ticket to keep the Democrats out, or the Democratic to keep the Republicans out, and the Evening Chronicle, call and all the lesser lights of the old partisan silver press will join in the cry. If they find, between now and election day in 1896, that the people are determined to rehabilitate silver, they will resort to the extreme measures of involving us in a war with some foreign power to distract the people from their cause and maintain their power. The attempt to kindle a feeling of hostility and awaken the martial spirit of the people, preparatory for such an emergency is even now going on, and nothing but Cleveland's bull-headed ability to force the single gold standard policy upon the people without such extreme measures, keeps us out of war to-day, and we find the press of the State practically a unit for war, anything for a fight; yet if there is a spoonful of brains in the editorial skull they know that a war with even the smallest republic or principality would rivet the chains of monometallism around us for a long time, if not forever. There is nothing original or cunning about the scheme. Napoleon The First practiced it in France a century ago. It never would have been necessary for the Allies to send him to St. Helena; The French people would have done more than banish him, they would have chopped off his head for his vicious statesmanship if he had not distracted their minds with glorious war.

There is just one thing that needs our attention at this time. We need no steel clad ships nor torpedo boats with which to attend to it, and that is to make our own people more prosperous and happy. Now, as we of the press have united on a remedy, let us remain united until the remedy has been applied. We pledge ourselves to support no man for Congress or President of the United States who will not pledge himself to use all his influence and power to secure the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at a fixed ratio of 16 to 1. In case the party with which we now act fails to nominate a candidate so pledged we will vote with and use the influence of our paper to secure the election of the candidate of any other party who will so pledge.

Now, brother Republican and Democratic editors, who are fighting for free coinage so valiantly, how many of you dare make the same pledge and go on record. Show your hands, and when you have done so, don't try to crawl back into the party fold through the knot hole of ratio, parity, or whenever England adopts silver, or any of the old chestnuts. The issue is on. It can no longer be evaded or turned aside. Old subterfuges are all worn out and new ones won't go. Let all who are bimetallic stand out; all who do not will be classed where they belong.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Modified Mint Shortage Items—Henry Not Wanted—Permanently Exiled—Mint Bullion Shipments—Runaway Convicts—Carson Bicyclers.

(Correspondence of the JOURNAL.)

CARSON CITY, Nev., May 25, 1896.

No great degree of excitement exists at the State Capital just now, the Mint shortage investigation having subsided out of sight, as it were. People who became quite excited over the discovery and official developments begin to doubt whether it will ever materialize into anything tangible, or beyond what is already shown up. This apathetic idea is considerably induced by the failure to arrest the ubiquitous Henry and bring him into court, which can be done if required. He is only so far away that he can be brought back at a cost of $200 for traveling expenses, etc., and if assured of being given a fair show he will come himself, if he has to foot it, being tired of his ostracized condition and willing to come home. But he is not like the Prodigal Son, he wants no fatted calf served upon the occasion or any public ovation as Sam Davis would make folks believe. Sam was a bit sarcastic in what he published a day or two ago on that proposition. Without Henry, Sam's ovation would be a failure, and therein applies the good old rule for cooking a rabbit—first catch your rabbit. But it looks now as though neither side wants Henry. He might bring this investigation to an end too suddenly, and how not to do it seems the judicious proposition.

What I stated in a former letter about Henry's barn having been investigated for traces of furnace, melting or retorting apparatus was absolutely true, notwithstanding its denial. The earth was dug up in sundry places, and two good sized excavations, one of them two or three feet deep, remain to be seen. But as before remarked, nothing tangible was discovered, yet it showed evidence of commendable detective vigilance and sensible investigation in a proper direction.

Another shipment of unparted bullion from the Carson Mint to the San Francisco Mint was made last evening, the first for over two weeks. It consisted of eight leather sacks of shoe bars, ten in each sack, or eighty bars weighing 200 ounces each—total value $32,000. It is Comstock bullion, principally Con. Virginia, received since the refinery closed. No more is being received according to orders, therefore Comstock bullion has to be shipped direct to San Francisco instead of to this mint.

The powerful and efficient steam engine furnishing the motive power of the Carson Mint for so many long years is idle now for the first time and its bright parts are painted with paraffine to keep them from rusting in anticipation of a continued rest or removal elsewhere.

Since the decision of the Supreme Court in Mrs. Hartley's case many people have been expecting her arrival on the passenger train or private conveyance, and special apartments are being elaborately prepared for her at the State Prison. But under the rule of the court she will not be brought here under fifteen days from the official publication of the decision, and not even then if her application for a rehearing should be granted.

Two convicts just discharged from five years service in the State Prison, were arrested yesterday for riotous celebration of their freedom and sentenced to ten days in the county jail. Sheriff Kinney put them at work on the street at the further end of town this morning after a good breakfast, but they ungratefully skipped out for parts unknown and are not likely to visit Carson again soon.

The tramp, Williams, charged with the horrible murder of old Mrs. Saarman is being tried in Genoa to-day. The evidence against him thus far does not amount to much.

All the boys and girls in Carson ride bicycles, but they are not tall enough for the longest limbed girls.

District Court.

The District Court transacted the following business yesterday:

In the case of Talbot vs. Rasmussen the court denied the motion to amend the judgment by inserting costs. Owing to the judgment being less than $300, the plaintiff cannot recover costs.

In the matter of the estate of B. H. Andrews, deceased, J. V. Peers was appointed administrator, the appointment to take effect upon a bond being filed in the sum of $4,000 by him.

Lucinda D. Moore was granted a divorce from Wm. Moore.

An order was made in the estate of Wm. Hoffman, deceased, for the allowance of certain funds from the estate.

1. O. O. F. Take Notice.

The members of the Order are requested to meet at the hall of Truckee Lodge No. 14, Sierra street, for the purpose of turning out in conjunction with the G. A. R. for memorial services May 30, 1895, at 9 o'clock A. M.

By order General Committee I. O. O. F. E. C. LEADREYER, Chairman.

A Bicycle Runs Down An Indian.

As W. G. Caffrey was hurrying to the electric station last night on his wheel and just as he was passing the depot an Indian ran out in the street and apparently did not see Mr. Caffrey coming at a ten mile an hour gait, and managed to get in range so that the bike struck him full force, sending him sprawling on the ground. Mr. Caffrey was taken as much by surprise as the Indian, and he shot out into the air and landed several feet beyond the Indian and bicycle. Before Caffrey could realize what had happened the Indian gathered himself up, and thinking he had been struck by the V. & T. locomotive, gave a howl and disappeared around the corner of Brooks' store. Caffrey got up with blood in his eye and a cantankerous feeling chasing up and down his back bone, and began examining his wheel and spitting out sand, teeth and language that was more emphatic than elegant, but the latter made no difference to the Indian, for he was out of hearing. An inventory of the damages showed the loss of some of Mr. Caffrey's epidermis, a smashed cyclometer and a few broken and bent spokes in the front wheel of the bike. The injuries to the Indian could not be ascertained as it is thought he is running yet.

The White Horse Mine.

The owners of the White Horse mine in White Horse district are making arrangements to resume operations on the lead. They have been sampling the ore and find that a selected piece assayed $96 10 in gold and 10 ounces in silver to the ton, and an average sample assayed $31 99 in gold to the ton. There is a shaft over 30 feet deep on the lead and the samples assayed were from near the bottom of the shaft where the lead is over two feet wide.

Viavi.

A physician of Reno says he would have more faith in Viavi, if we did not claim so much for it. Doctor, how can we help it, if it makes the cure for instance? Its use in Mr. Hunter's case is entirely out of its legitimate line, yet note the result. He was suffering intense pain, the physician expected his medicine to control it, in from two to three days. He used it three weeks and the pain was still as great. He was kept under opiates, to which he objected as I believe in curing pain instead of stupefying the body. The doctor said it was not probable he would ever get out again, and we must make him as comfortable as possible. I was not satisfied, I paid the doctor and sent for another. He assured me all had been done that could be, that he would have prescribed about the same. I discarded all medicine and used Viavi. In one night, with nothing but hot and cold water and Viavi Oerate, I gained control of the pain, and in two or three days not a vestige was left, and in two weeks he was on the street. There are other cases here just as wonderful. I will be glad to explain its uses to all who call.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Catilouette, Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at S. J. Hodgkinson's Drug Store.

Weak and Sore Eyes

Eyesight Became Affected—Unable to Go to School

Hood's Sarsaparilla Wrought Cure and Built Up System.

"Two years ago my little daughter Elsie, was afflicted with ulcerated sore eyes. I tried one of the best doctors in the city for about a year but her eyes seemed to grow worse. I had her treated by an oculist but his treatment did not benefit them. I then commenced to give the little one Hood's Sarsaparilla and after a few days the eyes began to improve. I now have a healthy child. Besides benefiting the special trouble mentioned Hood's Sarsaparilla has made her a strong and sprightly child. I will always speak highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla." J. H. CANNEDY, 215, North Fifth Street, Junior Fourth Ward School Building, Arkansas City, Kansas.

Elise Cannedy, Arkansas City, Kan., writes the first bottle I could see that there was great improvement. Elsie is now nine years old. Besides benefiting the special trouble mentioned Hood's Sarsaparilla has made her a strong and sprightly child. I will always speak highly of Hood's Sarsaparilla." J. H. CANNEDY, 215, North Fifth Street, Junior Fourth Ward School Building, Arkansas City, Kansas.

to use more intimate with "dear Miss Sada."

One day Hendrick and Alice were discovered rehearsing a vocal duet from a piece of sheet music belonging to Sada. For awhile Sada felt moved to do Alice some serious injury, but instead she simply burned the printed score.

When next she could lay hands upon it, "I wonder if I could wound Hendrick as he wounds me?" Sada mused one evening, and then and there resolved to put the matter to the test with the first putative victim arrived in the person of Frederic West, one of Hendrick's old and tried friends.

West was an Adonis, and admiration was lavished on him everywhere, but he fell into the trap Sada laid for him, and no wonder. Sada was noted for her powers of fascination. The Springs saw the other side of it. The gossip said that "Miss Banks was caught at last."

Hendrick looked on for some time in silence. Then he gave his one sign. With his eyes calmly fixed on Sada's he said:

"You are only playing with Fred, but he is in earnest." And Sada's heart grew heavy and hopeless. West was no longer encouraged. Stung by the change in her manner, he loved her more wildly than ever.

One evening Sada slipped quietly into the music hall. It was apart from the hotel and outcottage—a place Hendrick frequented late when the rest of the company were busy with their own amusements elsewhere. He loved to seat himself at the piano and let his fingers wander over the keys as they would in the gathering darkness. "I must hear him play when he fancies he is all alone. Perhaps I may find out something he is hiding from me," she whispered as she stole into the room and concealed herself in a dark corner.

Soon Hendrick came in. Ah, how he played! And as Sada listened and listened her soul thrilled in response to the music. The small cares of life fell from her shoulders. Every lofty ambition she had ever cherished came back and possessed her. She was filled with a beautiful new joy. She longed to go to Hendrick, to put her arms around his neck, to say "I know! I know!"

Some one came into the hall, and Sada shrank farther back into her dark corner. The intruder was Frederic West. "Old fellow, I want to ask you something," West said to his friend. "You know how I love Sada Banks. Why has she changed so suddenly? What makes her hold me at such a distance now?"

At the sound of his voice Sada was stirred with a deep shame for what she had done. It had been so cruelly unnecessary, so unworthy of her better self! Then she listened, with every nerve on edge. What would Hendrick say? Was this to be the hour of her triumph? Would Hendrick frankly explain that he was hers, and she was his?

"Fred," Hendrick answered gently, "forgive me for what I am about to tell you. I cannot say the same things to any other man, but you will understand me. Sada Banks has led you on, thinking to avenge herself upon me. She would do anything to make me suffer. She loves me. She will wreck her whole life one day because she loves me!"

A fierce anger took the place of shame in Sada's heart. Oh, what would she not give if she could strike down this man who had laid bare the weakness of her soul to another. As West left the hall she went quickly to Hendrick.

"I heard all that you told that man about me," she said in a voice so frigid that she shivered as she spoke. "It may be just as well for your self love to tell you now that you are in error; that I do not care for you in the least. I never did. I have only amused myself playing at friends with you, just as I have amused myself making your friend love me! Why," and she forced a laugh, with only a mockery of merriment in it, "I have been for years the promised wife of my cousin, a good man, a man of honor. The day for our wedding is already fixed."

Perhaps it was her laugh that betrayed her, or perhaps it was the better view of her face which the first beams of the rising moon gave him at that moment, but Hendrick knew that she had lied.

The next day she stood before him to say farewell. He looked intently into her face as though reading it. She carried his look with her until she died.

"What did he mean to say to me?" she sobbed as the train hurried her away from him. "What did he mean?" she asked herself again when, two days later, she stood beside Tom and called heaven to witness that she would love, honor and obey him till death should part them one from another.

Foolish, happy Tom! She said to him the moment they met, "If you will marry me tomorrow, you may," and he had taken her at her word.

"What did he mean?" she asked herself again and again as the years went by. She is asking it yet. One day, when she is born into that other life, where souls know as they are known, she may cease to ask it, but not till then.

Meanwhile she is not unhappy. Good, faithful Tom walks beside her and smooths her way. Tiny arms twine themselves about her neck. Prosperity attends her. It is only the ever present question that keeps her just a little short of satisfaction.—Kate Field's Washington

A LIFE'S EPILOGUE.

I turn the key and open with care
My reliquary's treasure unbelieved.
I tell their tale, those hoarded locks of hair,
Those sherry black, the silver gray, the golden.

What envy I yon fingers, lofty throned,
Who voice each mood in life's eternal dream!
No sweeter love than mine those lips have moaned.

They sang their songs—but I have lived my poem.
